Investing in clergy: Looking at the future

By the Rev. Cass Bailey

Each Annual Meeting of the Convention of our Diocese seems to have its own unique blend of flavors. This year's Convention will be enriched by a visit to Maui. There is no doubt that the "Friendly Isle" will add something special, especially for those of us who spend most of our life on O'ahu. Another flavor that will certainly characterize this year's Convention is the discussion that we will have regarding clergy. We will be looking at this issue from at least three vantage points. The Compensation Review Commission has examined this issue from the point of view of what we pay present clergy. The Task Force on the Recruitment and Retention of Clergy has looked at issues associated with recruiting and keeping clergy in the Diocese, and last year's Convention also called for a task force to look at how the training of future clergy might be paid for.

Each of these bodies will present to you their report, with recommendations on some of the things we need to do if we want the most highly skilled clergy serving in Hawaii. Before we engage in the specific recommendations and what they might mean for the present and future ministry of congregations in the diocese, I would suggest that we enter the discussion from a perspective of hopefulness.

A celebration at All Saints'

A special service was held at All Saints', Kapa'a, on Wednesday, August 10, celebrating the church's links with Hawaiian royalty. Here, members of Hawaiian organizations and the choir of Kapa'a First Hawaiian Church gather with the All Saints' congregation on the grounds outside Memorial Hall for a rededication of a memorial stone dedicated to Queen Emma. The service was part of the church's weeklong 80th anniversary celebration. See story, more photos, pages D, E.

Sacrifice, resurrection far away, at home

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

As I write this piece for the October issue of the Hawaiian Church Chronicle, the images of hurricane victims and devastation are still vivid. Just as the images of 9/11 and the tsunami of 2004 have been imprinted in my mind, so too the images of physical and emotional suffering are too fresh to easily forget.

Along with the images of pain, suffering, loss, and lawlessness, there were images of the Church at its best proclaiming the Good News of God in Christ in word and deed. Who can forget the picture of Father Harold Roberts standing amidst the rubble of the Church of the Redeemer in Biloxi, MS, and celebrating the Eucharist with his community? There was an amazing strength in that photo, which appeared on television and newspapers around the world. For me that picture was a powerful statement of God's love that gives hope to those who experienced the devastating darkness of Hurricane Katrina. It is the powerful love that overcame the grave and gave us the gift of eternal life. It is the love that moved people of faith to respond generously and with compassion to the needs of those who suffered from the devastation of Katrina.

Each of us has been affected directly and indirectly by Hurricane Katrina because of people whom we know. Holly, our elder daughter who is a nurse, was at the Houston Astrodome in the week after the hurricane as a member of a trauma response team. She and her team dealt with 400 to 500 patients during their twelve-hour shifts at triage centers. In the midst of this, Holly sent me this email message, "Did I mention that I am a bit scared ... I hope I can do well in the situation that God has called me today."

The Right Rev.
Richard S.O. Chang

As we continue to support the redevelopment of communities damaged and destroyed by the hurricane, remember that our continued support is the result of God's call to us to mission — to proclaim in word and deed the Good News — that does not end.

My prayer is that we will make decisions for mission at our Annual Meeting later this month. We will be scarred by the hard decisions. We must take tremendous risks venturing into our future. We will have to sacrifice and practice self-denial in our discipleship. But as disciples of the Risen Christ, we can do nothing less than proclaim the joy and hope of the Resurrection in the communities in which we find ourselves. We, like Father Roberts, may have to stand in the rubble of society as we witness to our faith in the Risen

Focusing on what's most important

Lately I've been thinking about "what's most important." I was put in mind of this by moving, taking up new jobs, some things I've read and heard, but especially by Hurricane Katrina. Seeing a major city virtually destroyed, with all the attendant destruction of homes, jobs, and lives, makes me reflect on priorities, gifts and blessings, and where our attention lies.

I think of "what's most important" also as we prepare as a Diocese for the Annual Meeting of the Convention. The October issue each year of the Hawaiian Church Chronicle is the "Convention issue." In other words, it's the one in which we include information that prepares us for the Convention later this month.

If you are a delegate, you'll have a "heads up" on some of the things coming up at Convention; and even if you are not a delegate, it is still important for you to know what is happening. At Convention, we as a Diocese gather together in worship and discussion, and major decisions are made for the direction of our life together. (Just so you know, the way publishing deadlines work, we will not publish the news of the Convention until the December Chronicle, because the November issue is printed before Convention even happens.)

At last year's Convention, we reviewed 21 resolutions; this year we have only three (as of this writing, which is after the deadline for submitting resolutions). The Diocesan Council has given us a balanced budget, and with a lowered assessment rate even. In short, many of the things that normally occupy our attention are not present this year.

The Rev. Liz Beasley
CHRONICLE EDITOR

We still have challenges before us: We need more nominations to diocesan positions. There's still time to consider serving; see page F for a list of the positions available and the diocesan website for a description of each.

We also will take up the challenging presentation and a resolution from the Compensation Review Commission. See their article in this issue, as well as the accompanying one from the Task Force on the Recruitment and Retention of Clergy. These challenges ask us to think in new ways, to listen to how God might lead us to be faithful to what's most important, and to consider bold new ventures.

Two bold new ventures are presented in this issue: a series of music camps on Maui (teaching bluegrass and Hawaiian music, combined!) and a weeklong celebration in honor of the 80th anniversary of All Saints' on Kaua'i. Each of these events represented a major commitment of time and planning. And it was a bold new venture, too, for All Saints' new Rector, the Rev. Mary Koppel, who arrived during the week of the celebrations. Each event brought attention to some things that matter: learning and creativity, honoring the gifts and sacrifice of those who have come before us, and joining together in celebration. But ultimately, they were an expression of faith: that as we take risks and express our faith in bold ways, that God will be with us.

People in Hawai'i and throughout the country are expressing their faith in bold ways in response to Hurricane Katrina, as we and they take up offerings of money and supplies, house displaced families, and establish sister-church relationships with congregations affected by this disaster. Katrina has reminded us of the importance of faith, which is the most important thing of all.

Mahalo to the churches of Maui for being bold and inviting the Convention to their shores. And as we gather there and take up our work, may we stay focused on the things that matter, knowing that if we are faithful, God will be with us.

Hawaiian and bluegrass music camps at PECUSA

By the Rev. Heather Mueller-Fitch

RECTOR, ST. JOHN'S, KULA

Camp PECUSA, in Olowalu, Maui, was the site for a series of three unique music camps held from August 19-30. More than 155 people were involved in the three sessions, which were the inspiration of Belle Mickelson, who has conducted a music camp in Cordova, Alaska. The music was bluegrass and Hawaiian, with teachers from both Alaska and Hawai'i. Kawena Mann, Pekelo, and Kevin Brown were some of the local musicians that taught at the camps.

The first session was designed from children ages 4-8 and their parents. The second session consisted of grades 6, 7, and 8 from Haleakala Waldorf School, and the third session consisted of young people ages 9-15. At the end of the camp sessions, we had a grand Mele, with groups of musicians playing.

Each camper was given opportunities to receive instruction on guitar, fiddle, mandolin, string bass, and banjo. In addition, each session included singing, hula, and Hawaiian crafts.

Some people were heard to say it was the best camp we've ever had at PECUSA. Ka-malani Makua, a sixth-grader at Kamehameha Schools, was so inspired by the Music Camp that she switched from the band to the orchestra at school so she could learn more on the fiddle (violin).

Her sister Kuulei, age 12, said, "Since we don't know if Camp PECUSA will be available next August, we can just pitch some tents on St. John's new property and have Music Camp there!" (The good news is that the Camp will be operating, and we have reserved August 11-27, 2006, for Music Camp at PECUSA.)

Management of Camp PECUSA reverts to owner

On September 1, 2005, the Diocese of Hawai'i relinquished the lease on Camp PECUSA on Maui, which had been managed by Holy Innocents Church, Lahaina.

The Camp, which has a long history of use by the Episcopal churches on Maui, is now under direct control by the landowner, West Maui Land Company. The Company intends to invest in badly needed repairs and cleanup in order to bring the infrastructure up to standard.

They have also set up a Camp PECUSA Advisory Board to guide the direction of the Camp in the near future. The Rev. Morley Frech, Rector of Trinity-by-the-Sea, Kihei, and John Decker, Senior Warden of Good Shepherd, Wailuku, both serve on the Advisory Board.

In recognition of the history and the importance of the Camp to Maui's church people, a representative of the Company states that "we are committed to keeping the camp grounds open and available to the groups that have historically used it."

Up-Country Fair a big success at Christ Church on Big Island

By the Rev. Carol Arney

RECTOR, CHRIST CHURCH

On Sept. 5, the congregation of Christ Church Episcopal gathered early in the morning to put the finishing touches on their fourth Annual Up-Country Fair. The process has been streamlined by the completion of the new Community Center.

In less than an hour, tents were popped up, games were stocked with prizes, a climbing wall was erected, and the large bouncer was inflated!

Inside the Community Center, visitors found a bountiful display of baked goods and preserves, plus special recipes, and the new kitchen was ready to serve hundreds of plate lunches, hot dogs, hamburgers, and snacks. In the pasture next door, horses were ready to give children rides and pose for pictures.

While the final tallies were not completed in time for the Hawaiian Church Chronicle deadline, the fundraising element of the fair was definitely a success. But it is clear that the fair was successful because of the contributions of many sponsors, who allowed us to include the professional activities for the children and promote the event to the community.

We gratefully thank Kealakekua Ranch Center, Mona Grams, Stockly's Aquariums, WalMart, Grace Ackerman, Betty Dunford, Ken Kjer, Frank Goodale, Betsy Strance, and Shawn Nakoa for their sponsoring contributions.

In terms of community building and sharing, our returns were even greater than our monetary totals.

The chance to extend our aloha to the people who joined us on the campus of the church was beyond price. The joy in a child's face when they win a fish, ride a horse, or ring the bell at the top of the climbing wall was the greatest reward.

One week before the scheduled date of the fair, Hurricane Katrina swept over the Gulf Coast of the United States, and our hearts were filled with the tragic news of this immense disaster.

We immediately decided to make our annual fair a benefit for the Episcopal Relief and Development Fund for Hurricane Katrina relief. On Sept. 6, we counted more than $2,000 in direct donations to ERD, and contributions are still coming in.

Christ Church has definitely found our niche in the West Hawai'i community with an event we look forward to from year to year.

Good Shepherd celebrates ministries

On back-to-back Sundays, Good Shepherd Episcopal Church celebrated 50 years of ordained ministry for Father Layton Zimmer and then welcomed the ministry of the Rev. Robert K. "Moki" Hino as Chaplain at Seabury Hall in Olinda.

Zimmer, Rector Emeritus of Good Shepherd Episcopal Church, gave witness to his ministry in solidarity with those who have been marginalized by society and also by the church in an emotionally powerful sermon on August 14.

Layton's journey has taken him through the Deep South during the momentous days of the civil rights movement, to parish ministries in Delaware, Pennsylvania, Colorado, and New Mexico, as well as service in the Peace Corps in the Kingdom of Tonga.

The parish then gathered in honor of Zimmer to eat and talk story at the Kama'ole Beach Park III in Kihei.

Hino, the new Chaplain at Seabury Hall, was welcomed into the fellowship of Good Shepherd Episcopal Church, his new parish family, on August 21.

He joined the Rev. Marvin Lee Foltz and the Rev. Ricky R. Melchor at the altar. This was the first Sunday on which the newly formed Emerging Worship Team at Good Shepherd provided the music for the festival liturgy.

A week of special events

All Saints' celebrates 80 years

By David Murray

EVENT CO-COORDINATOR

A Eucharist service celebrating the church's 80th anniversary; a midweek service celebrating the church's links with Hawaiian Royalty including a rededication of a memorial stone to Queen Emma; the Bishop of Hawai'i, the Rt. Rev. Richard S.O. Chang, officiating at a Eucharist service celebrating the 60th anniversary of the end of World War II; tours of the historic buildings on the church property including a "museum-like" display of historic artifacts in the 80-year-old rectory; a family festival including rides and games for children, a food fair, a craft fair, a plant sale, and entertainment throughout the day.

This sounds like a major part of an annual calendar of special events for a church. In fact this all happened during the week of August 7-14, as the congregation of All Saints' Episcopal Church in Kapa'a, Kaua'i, celebrated the 80th anniversary of the church, built in 1925.

They decided to share their 80 years of history with the community during a weeklong celebration of church services and activities held on the church grounds at 1065 Kuhio Highway in Kapa'a. Island residents and visitors were invited to attend the grand celebration.

The events began at 9:30 a.m. on Aug. 7 with a special Sunday Eucharist service. The service celebrated the Episcopal Church in Kapa'a and gave thanks to the many families and individuals whose lives have, over the years, been intimately associated with All Saints.

As the celebration continued through the week another special service was held on Aug. 10, celebrating the church's links with Hawaiian Royalty. Members invited Hawaiian organizations and prominent local people to join them in reaffirming this important church's history.

The service included the rededication of a memorial stone dedicated to Queen Emma and inscribed "In Memory of her — 1836-1885 — Queen of Hawaii — instrumentality the Anglican Church in These Islands. The gift of Iolani".

The rededication ceremony was an opportunity for organizations to present ho'okupu (offerings). Nakanelua-Richards represented the Guild at the service, and Hawaiian organizations represented included the Sons of Kamehameha I, Na Wahine Kamehameha, Aha Hui O Kaahumanu Ali'i and the Daughters of Hawaii. The service was held in the evening and followed by refreshments.

Tours of the church's history were conducted all week, and visitors were able to view Hawaiian historical artifacts including Queen Emma and her regalia. Among the items on display were a chalice and paten inscribed "Presented to the first Anglican Church in Kapa'a, Kaua'i, September 6, 1883." The chalice had previously been passed to each successive church on Kaua'i at the occasion of its founding.

Visitors were also able to view a koa prayer desk originally owned by Queen Emma and currently used at the church. Sunday during healing prayer was an important opportunity for residents to learn about the Hawaiian church with the Hawai'i Episcopal Church.

On Aug. 13, the church grounds were the site of a much-anticipated all-day festival (celebration), which included entertainment, games and prizes, food and drinks from local restaurants.

The keiki had fun with a water slide, air-filled bounce houses, and other games. The day also included a plant sale. In addition to the plant stock donated by members and friends of the congregation, Growing Greens Nursery, a local nursery, donated time, expertise, plants, and bedding plants to help make this event a success. Admission to the ho'olaule'a was free but scrip was required to purchase food and refreshments or to participate in the games.

A variety of local artists provided entertainment throughout the day. The entertainment included Hawaiian and Tahitian dancing, Christian rock music, taiko drummers, slack key guitar, and much more.

The week of festivities came to a close on Aug. 14, with a special service, officiated by Bishop Chang, honoring the church family, veterans, and their families, as well as those currently serving in our Armed Forces.

This special service celebrated the 60th anniversary of the end of World War II and focused in particular on the "Honor Roll" located just inside the entrance to the church and dating from 1944. The Honor Roll lists the names of members of the Episcopal Church on Kaua'i who joined the armed forces during the World War II.

Those on the Honor Roll still living, descendants of those no longer with us, and veterans groups were invited to attend. It was particularly moving to hear members of the congregation read the names of all 76 men listed on the honor roll during the Prayers of the People.

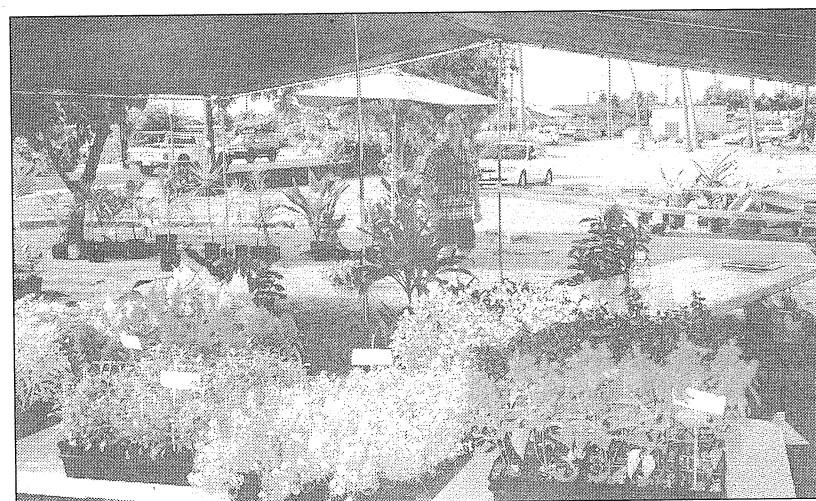

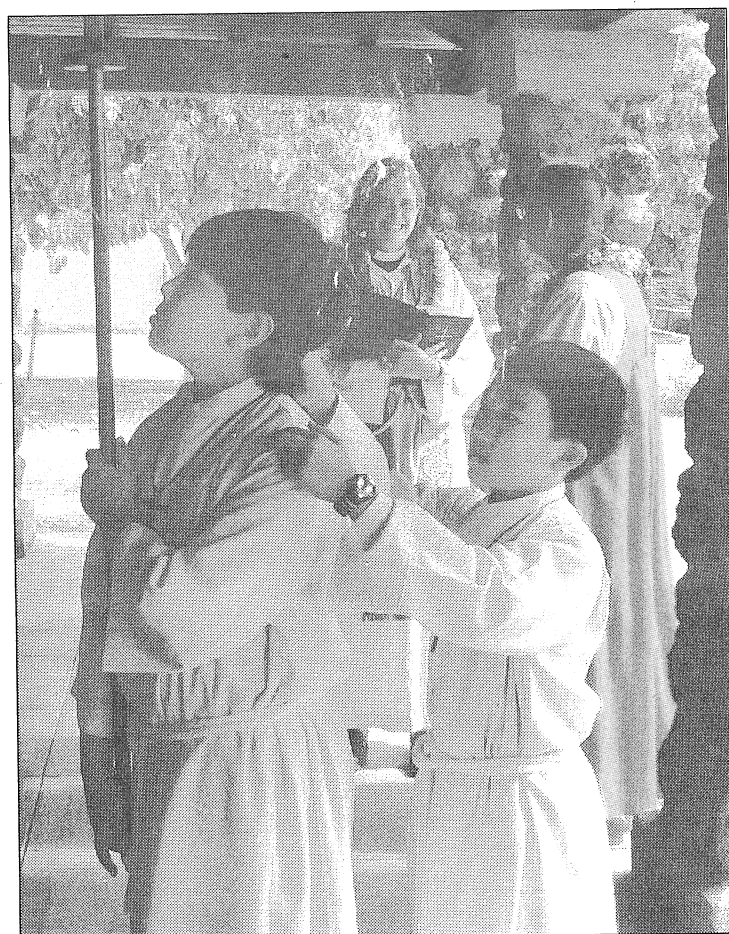

The idea to read the Honor Roll at the service came from an item in an old issue of the church magazine, the Kauaiian, dated July 1, 1943, which read as follows:

Our Men in the Service.

The names of the more than thirty men who are serving in our armed forces and who have been baptized, confirmed, or whose names have been entered as communicants of All Saints' Church, and who have not been transferred to other churches, have been entered on the honor roll of All Saints' Church, the honor roll is read at all mid-morning communion services and special prayers are offered. The honor roll includes men from all of our churches on Kauai. We are proud of our men who wear the uniform of their country. We won't forget them. We won't forget to pray for them.

All Saints' Church has a history rich in service to the residents of Kaua'i and continues to serve many groups and organizations. The Episcopal Church Women (ECW) is a service organization that develops projects to serve the community throughout the year and especially during the holidays. They meet monthly in the Memorial Hall. The Sunday school meets at 9:30 a.m. on Sundays. The church supports various youth groups, one of which traveled to Las Vegas in 2003 and delivered homemade quilts to the homeless. The church also participates in interdenominational church activities such as the Thanksgiving Day dinner served to the public and those in need.

A few of the organizations now utilizing church facilities are All Saints' Pre-School, Hale Kipa (Hawaii Advocate Program for Youth substance abuse), various basketball groups (adult men, boys and girls), aerobics classes, Tahitian dance, community craft fairs, children's dance, Narcotics Anonymous, past charter schools, and hula. A successful local business, Anahola Granola, operates out of rented space in the All Saints' Gym.

Clockwise, from bottom left: A taiko group performs at the All Saints' ho'olaule'a; rides and games, including a trampoline, were available for keiki at the August 13 festivities; a color guard leads the procession to the church for a service, celebrated by Bishop Chang, honoring All Saints' veterans and celebrating the 60th anniversary of the end of World War II; the congregation gathers with members of Hawaiian churches and organizations for a service outside the church's Memorial Hall; Senior Warden Wilfred Kimura (center), with his wife Janet, points out Hawaiian artifacts to the recently arrived Rev. Mary Koppel on a display in the rectory, which served as a museum for the anniversary celebrations; Ty Shiramizu adjusts the alb of crucifer Shane Nishioka, while the Rev. Mary Koppel, All Saints' new Rector, and Bishop Chang await the beginning of the service; Bill Brown, Chair of Buildings and Grounds, surveys the plants offered for sale during the ho'olaule'a.

CRC makes compensation recommendations

By Dot Shigemura

CRC CHAIR

“A what? A 10 percent increase to the clergy compensation scale? What a burden — we’ll never be able to afford that!”

A burden? Or a blessing?

This year, the recommendations coming out of the Compensation Review Commission (CRC) are:

1. To increase the minimums on the clergy compensation scale by 10 percent each year for the next four years;
2. To increase the car allowance from $6,041 to $6,600;
3. To provide for an overall 4.5 percent increase to the Office of the Bishop’s staff.

Because of the boldness of this year’s recommendation, the CRC decided to come out to you, to talk with the laity and the clergy in separately held meetings so everyone could openly share their comments and thoughts. “Road Shows” were held on each island during August and September with the laity (wardens, treasurers, and Convention delegates) and with the clergy.

The presentation explained how current market forces are changing in hiring clergy, and how the CRC has watched this over the past several years, becoming more and more concerned each year.

Last year’s CRC put forth a resolution at Convention to convene a Task Force to fur-

Clergy

and Retention of Clergy, as well as the other bodies, have come up with a number of proposals that would significantly improve Hawai’i’s ability to bring in clergy and raise up the best and brightest among us. Some of the recommendations involve no money at all, simply human and other resources to be made available. Other recommendations will involve a substantial financial commitment by all of us in order to lessen the financial strain on clergy coming to and raising a family in Hawai’i. One thing that I have learned in church ministry is that when we begin to discuss money issues we can easily get caught up in what we can’t afford to do rather than what might be possible with God’s help.

If we were to attempt to do on our own the many things that the various task forces are calling for, we surely would fail. But if we believed that God really wanted us to move in this direction, then I am convinced that with God’s help we can. The first step on this journey lies with us at this Convention. It is for us to plant our feet and point ourselves in the direction of investing in clergy. We won’t know all that lies ahead but with God’s help we can do anything!

The Rev. Cass Bailey is rector of St. Christopher’s in Kailua and a member of the Task Force on the Recruitment and Retention of Clergy..

ther study recruitment and retention issues facing our Diocese.

This year’s CRC, after further studying the situation, finally decided on the recommendations above.

We truly do consider this a blessing. We thank the Lord for the changing market forces and the situation before us, because it then gives us a chance to take a hard look in the mirror at who we are, what our focus has become, and where we want to head in the future. Is our focus on how we repair the broken pew in the seventh row? Have we become a church that is comfortable seeing the same people each week at Sunday services (and might even feel a little uncomfortable if a strange face showed at our doors)? Are we a church that wants to grow to a 200 (300? 400?) Sunday attendance and be filled with the voices of little children each week?

This recommendation will require us all to sit down and figure out how it will be implemented in our own congregations. How do we rethink the shape of our ministry as we roll into the 21st century? Do we consider yoking (joining) with the church down the street, selling one of our buildings and coming together as one strong group with voices lifted to God? Do we rip out our pews to keep things fresh and invigorating and to make us really think about what church truly is? Do we start small groups to deepen our members’ spiritual journeys in a life-changing way? Do we educate our congregants on planned and endowed giving in their wills, so things like rectories and endowed funds for equity housing allowances can be donated to our churches? These are just some of the suggestions that were talked about in the road shows.

The bottom line for the CRC is to get you educated — educated on the current market forces in making a new call, educated on what the concerns and issues are, and educated on what it will take your congregation to be able to afford your next priest.

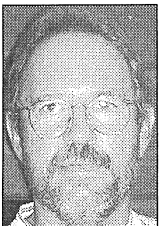

It is not a matter of if, but when, you will need to make your next call, and we want you to be properly prepared for it.

If you missed your Road Show and are interested in hearing the presentation prior to Convention, please contact Dot Shigemura at lavadot@lava.net.

Convention nominees

At press time, the following nominations had been received. They are listed here in alphabetical order within each category. Elections will take place at the Annual Meeting of Convention, October 28–29, on Maui. Also to be elected are two clergy members of Diocesan Council; one clergy and one lay member to Cathedral Chapter; one clergy or layperson as Secretary of the Convention; and one clergy person and one clergy person to the Ecclesiastical Trial Court.

Kahumoku, Ho to perform at concert at St. Elizabeth's

Kahumoku

Ho

The Children's Outreach Center at St. Elizabeth's in Honolulu will be the beneficiary of a concert by Uncle George Kahumoku and Daniel Ho on Nov. 26 at St. Elizabeth's in Honolulu.

The event will begin at 2:30 p.m. with a groundbreaking ceremony for the Outreach center, a learning and activity center for inner-city children and teens teaching reading, arts, crafts, and music. The concert, of hymns of Hawai'i in Hawaiian and slack key guitar, follows at 3 p.m.

Tickets are $15, and seating is limited. Each ticket purchaser receives a free CD by either Kahumoku or Ho. Home-baked goods will be available for purchase.

For more information, or to purchase tickets, call St. Elizabeth's, 845-2112.

Epiphany celebrates a joy-filled Sunday

June 5 was a day packed with celebrations at Epiphany Church in Kaimuki.

The congregation joined in celebrating a number of events in the life of their Deacon, the Rev. Pat Leo. The day before, on June 4, Pat had married Donald Reynolds, Senior Warden of St. Stephen's, Wahiawa. The now Rev. Pat Reynolds was also celebrating her birthday and her retirement from St. Francis.

Epiphany also enjoyed some special guests that day. Former members Ralph and Lisa Zimmerman, now of Wyoming, were visiting.

The guest preacher was the Rev. Dr. Elsbery Reynolds, a former assistant at Epiphany from 1970 to 1977. Also present was the Rev. Burton Linscott, Rector of Epiphany during the same time.

Beverly Van Horne ordained to priesthood

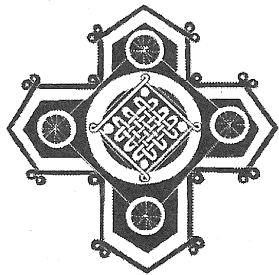

The Rev. Beverly Van Horne was ordained to the priesthood in the Diocese of Missouri on June 24 at Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis. Van Horne was formerly a resident of Hawai'i when her husband, the Rev. Peter Van Horne, served here as priest.

She now is the Priest-in-Charge of Trinity Church, De Soto, Missouri.

St. Andrew's begins third year of 'Journey'

St. Andrew's will begin its third year of "The Journey" on Sunday, October 2. The Journey unfolds in four stages of Inquiry, Formation, Intense Preparation, and Reflection.

Stage I, Inquiry, will meet weekly from 4:30-6:30 p.m. in the Von Holt Room on Sunday evenings this fall. At each stage, participants decide whether they wish to commit to continuing in the next stage.

Members of any congregation in the Diocese are welcome to participate.

There is no cost, but please contact the Cathedral office at 524-2822 to receive a registration form.

The Journey is an organized process for welcoming, supporting, and caring for people and for providing a place where the human story and God's story can be heard and told.

The process is not an end or a solution. It is an imperfect way of offering ourselves to be companions to one another on our Christian journeys.

The Journey is open to all persons, baptized or unbaptized, who want to enter a process of exploration and growth. Divided into four stages, each stage is marked by an appropriate rite.

At the center are the initiatory sacraments of baptism, confirmation, reception, reaffirmation, and baptismal renewal.

Surrounding these sacramental celebrations is a process to form people of faith as they strive to live in their daily places as followers of Jesus Christ.

St. Elizabeth's, Honolulu to celebrate Founders' Day

All are invited to join present and former parishioners and friends at St. Elizabeth's in Honolulu on October 16 at 10 a.m. for a glorious Eucharistic service to celebrate Founders' Day.

The service will be followed by a reception under the Big Tent at 720 North King St.

Luncheon tickets are available for $15 by calling the church office at 845-2112. Please call soon if you want a ticket.

Come and share 103 years of magnificent history with our church in the Palama area of Honolulu.

Amazing grace at ECW Annual Meeting

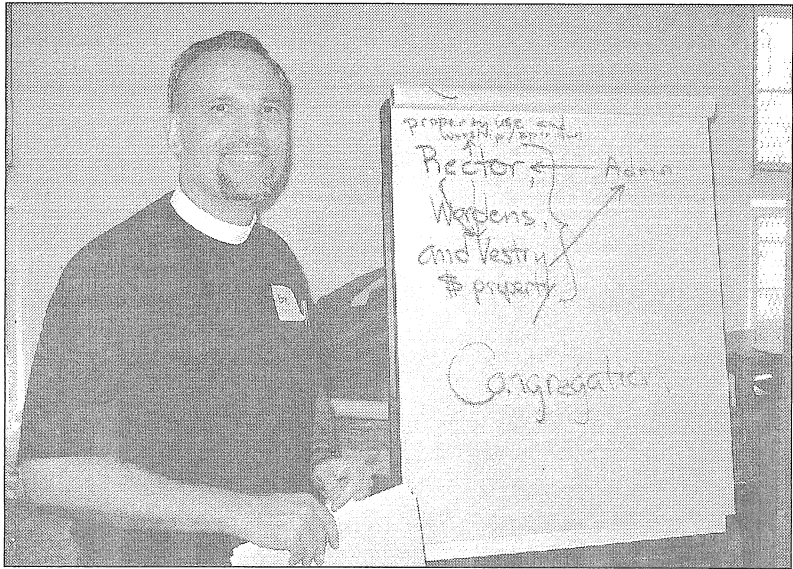

The Annual Meeting of the Episcopal Church Women (ECW) will be held this year the week before the Convention.

All are invited. Kathleen Norris, author and member of St. Clement's, will be the keynote speaker, on the theme "Amazing Grace in Daily Life."

Following lunch will be the presentation of this year's Kupuna Awards.

Go to:

www.episcopalhawaii.org, click on News & Events for more information about the ECW meeting and Kupuna Awards.

Church officials gather for learning, fellowship

Sixteen church administrators and secretaries from throughout the Diocese gathered on Aug. 24, for a Church Secretaries/Administrators' Workshop. This annual gathering, held each August, provides an opportunity for networking and education for those who carry the responsibilities of staffing the offices of our churches. Of the 16 secretaries and administrators who attended, three were new to their positions in the last year and one more were attending for the first time.

The day included a presentation of the Diocese's personnel policy, currently being drafted; instruction on making PowerPoint presentations; tips for communicating effectively in print and on the web; and a presentation on "Canons, policies, and all those other official-sounding things you've asked but know nothing about." The day was hosted by the Office of the Bishop, who made the presentations, along with Wayne Yoshigai, Vice Chancellor of the Diocese.
